THE DAILY NEWS.

VOL. 11.

RALEIGH, N. C., THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1873.

NO. 81.

IMPROVEMENTS IN RALEIGH AS OBSERVED BY AN OUTSIDER.—An Editorial correspondence in the last Hillsboro Recorder, under date of the 21st inst., says of our city and its improvements:

"The great amount of buildings now under contract, and those already in the course of construction in the city of Raleigh, will reach in round numbers to-day one million of dollars. This amount represents what has been and will have been added to the city in the last fiscal year. The population of the city under the last enumeration was eight thousand five hundred, and this would be a little over one hundred and twenty dollars per head which each citizen has added to the present wealth of Raleigh, within the space of twelve months."

"To mention a few of the principal structures and undertakings, the enlarging and otherwise improving of the Yarrowburgh House, at a cost of $50,000; General Barringer's block on Wilmington street $20,000; Capt. A. B. Andrews' residence on Blount street, $12,000; Col. Bantling's store and residence on Fayetteville street, $15,000; Williamson & Upchurch's store and warehouse on west side of Fayetteville street, $21,000; improvements to the Baptist Female School, $15,000; the new Fair Grounds, $30,000; the Shaw collegiate (col.) Institute $40,000; the Masonic Temple $65,000; the new Post Office, $200,000; the Fisher building, $35,000; and other improvements throughout the city will double this amount. It would be difficult to find any house or lot in the city that does not show the mark of progress in a new fence, roof, or fresh coat of paint. The public reservations, so long bare and worn, have all been fenced in, graded, soiled, and sowed in grass."

"The busy hum of machinery is heard from early morn till night, while the chisel click and the stroke of the hammer rings throughout the city. The laborer is building himself a hut, the mechanic his cottage, and the merchant his palace. There are no idlers upon the street corners with the mournful croaking, 'I have nothing to do,' all as busy as prosperity can make them."

How it works.—It is a pleasant position, that of a local editor, so lry, so agreeable, nothing to do, &c., &c. To those of our rising generation who aspire to the position, we will relate, for their encouragement, the experience of an old hand yesterday morning: We arrived at the office at 9 o'clock, found one gentleman in waiting for us, to whom we offered to exchange the compliments of the morning, but he was in no humor for compliments. His first remark was: "What in the hell have you to do with our fishing excursion?"

"If we only took one bottle along and forgot the meat, I'd have you to understand, sir, it is none of your business." We told him in a very mild tone that we would endeavor to "understand."

In a few minutes after the departure of our friend, (who desired us to "understand") the door opened and in stepped a full two hundred pounder who informed us in a loud voice enough for a deaf man to hear that when he wanted a Ten star advertised in the NEWS he would give due notification, and would pay for it. Before we could tell him our rates, he slammed the door and was off. We thought it good time for us to follow his example, but at the door we met our "Good Temprer friend."

He had paid a visit to the Beer Gardens. He was awful mad, but we finally compromised the matter over a glass of ice water and parted good friends. All this in a half hour.

GRIFIN AND MORDECAI RESPIRED.—His Excellency, Governor Caldwell, has respited the condemned convicts, Simpson Mordecai and Tom Griffin, till Friday, the 31st of June, and will in the meantime consider the application for commutation of the death sentence to imprisonment for life. Their execution was appointed for Friday and preparations were already being made for the tragic event. The Governor has not expressed himself as to what action he will take in the matter and much interest is manifested in his decision. As far as we can learn, the sentiment of the community is divided as to the expediency of commuting the sentence. The offense was one of an aggravated nature, but the men who plotted and put the plan in execution have been released as State's witnesses, and the two men who were persuaded into the perpetration of this outrage are the condemned for whom the application is made.

CITY SCRIPT.—In our yesterday's issue we asked the question, if there was an order of the Board of City Commissioners requiring the clerk to issue city script to employees and others for the balance of the face of the original script in cases where the script was sold at a discount. We have been shown the following ordinance, which passed the Board on May 8th, 1873:

"Mr. Battle made the following motion: That the Board will not entertain any motion for increase of salaries on account of losses sustained on city warrants. Adopted."

The above order is in full force and effect, and the clerk does not issue script in any other manner than as the law directs.

BRISK BUSINESS FOR TWO DAYS.—Sunday and Monday, up to 12 o'clock, M., the city guard house was crowded with men and women, of the most abandoned character—filthy themselves, and despoiling everything they came in contact with. Immediately on the emptying of the cells Monday, Chief of Police King put a number of hands to cleaning the floors, and white-washers to whitening the walls. We visited the station Wednesday morning, upon invitation, and found everything neat and clean, and no unpleasant odor perceptible.

ERRATUM.—For "millennium" read "millennium" in yesterday's editorial on "The World's Omissions." The error was not the Editor's.

NEW VERSION OF AN OLD STORY.—Some of our readers will doubtless remember our story of the Rev. Dr. Closs, that appeared in these columns about twelve months ago. The story having gone the rounds of the Southern and Northern press, just now appears in a Kentucky paper, where it was seen by the author of the subjoined verses. The story as related by us, (true in every particular) is briefly as follows:

The Rev. Dr. Closs, a Presiding Elder of the North Carolina Conference, in passing through Warren county, on one of his circuits many years ago, halted for the night at the residence of the Rev. Mr. Burge. He was assigned to a room that adjoined the closet where Mrs. Burge kept her sugar, jams, preserves, etc., and a door opened from his room into the closet.

Mrs. Burge had a young "hopeful" of about twelve years of age, that frequently performed from this closet some of the sweetest therein contained. Remonstrances proved of no avail, and she finally informed the recalcitrant youth that she would not spare the rod if he was ever again caught in the act.

Before retiring, Dr. Closs informed his host that he desired to make an early start in the morning, and consequently at an early hour Mrs. B. "set about" her breakfast. Finding her sugar-dish nearly empty she repaired to her closet to replenish the supply. Opening the door noiselessly she discovered a form near the sugar barrel, which she supposed to be her young "hopeful" sleeping in it. Rushing back to her room, she seized her hickory, silently wended her way to the closet and with the remark, "I have got you at last," applied several rapid raps on the devoted head of the aged Dr. Closs (who had repaired to the closet to offer up his morning prayer) before she discovered her mistake.

THE ELDER'S PREDICAMENT.—BY J. T. SMITH.

In old North Carolina, long long years ago, As given in a late RALEIGH NEWS, The following occurred, and I guess it is so, But believe it or not as you choose.

There lived a good man, Rev. Burge was his name, With his wife and an orphan of eight, Though tender and kind he was to his wife, For his mother his faults would berate.

She kept all her sugar just under the stairs, In the closet, for safe it would be, Where she often retired to offer her prayers Unseen on devotional knee.

But with all her precautions her sugar would grow, Growing less on each day in the week, Till she felt she could bear it no longer, She determined to find out the leak.

She told her young "hopeful" that he was the cause Of it all, and was guilty of crime, And she read in his hearing a new code of laws, And she'd "flog him the very next time!"

Soon the Methodist Quarterly Meeting came "round, And the Elder stopped there for the night, And he rose the next morning before any sound, Had betokened the dawning of light.

It had been his custom for many long years To retire to his closet to pray, And with his petitions to mingle his tears At the close and the opening of day.

He groped then his way to that closet to find, With no harmful or evil intent, But to pay once again to his maker a vow, And so into that closet he went.

He knelt near the place where the sugar was, While his thoughts upward earnestly rose, And thus for a while he devoutly would pray For assistance to bear earthly woes.

But the good sister Burge imagined she heard, In the closet her boy once again, And she spoke along softly and spoke not a word, As her watching had not been in vain.

Then she thought to herself, "now this habit I'll check, And I'll teach him a lesson or two, For if it do not better be sure a wreck, And my sorrows will not be few."

Then into the closet she hastily rushed, With a long heavy switch in her hand, While the prayers of that Elder were speedily hushed, And his pleadings were brought to a stand.

With an uplifted hand she laid on with a will, And the ticks became heavy and fast— Thus she hoped in her boy better thoughts to instill, As she cried, "I have got you at last!"

JEAN RAISIN.—The Norfolk Virginian, of a recent date, has the following about North Carolina:

"The State of North Carolina has an undeveloped wealth which promises in the future to put her among the most opulent of all the States, and if she is true to herself—if she once more takes her destiny in her own hands—that future is not remote. As an evidence of what she can do, even under her present disadvantages, we may mention the fact stated by the RALEIGH NEWS that the 'Tokay' vineyard of Fayetteville produced during the past year twenty thousand gallons of fine wine, for which a market is readily found at remunerative prices. In other parts of the State this industry is growing up, and we see no reason why it should not become very general. Apart from the commercial advantages to be derived from this manufacture, there are other considerations which should not be lost sight of. In a direct ratio to the introduction of native wines we shall see the habits of our people improve. In place of the alcoholic drinks now used our native wines will become popular, and the health and morals of our people will improve. Jean Raisin is a better friend to man than John Barleycorn, and the blood of the grape is preferable to the fiery juice of sophisticated corn."

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT DAVIDSON COLLEGE.—We acknowledge an invitation to attend the anniversary celebration, on the 25th of June, of the Philanthropic and Eumenen Literary Societies of Davidson College. General Thomas L. Clingman, of Asheville, will deliver the Oration before the Philanthropic Society will be Messrs. J. W. McLaughlin, N. C.; P. R. Law, N. C.; M. C. McKey, Ala. Those from the Eumenen Society will be W. R. Moore, Tenn.; A. W. Wilson, S. C.; J. E. Fogarty, S. C.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CITY COMMISSIONERS.—The City Commissioners met at the Mayor's Court room last evening.

Present: His Honor, Mayor Whitaker, presiding. Commissioners—Gorman, Upchurch, White, Prairie, and Jones, Ellison and Ricks, col.

On motion of Mr. Prairie, that portion of Mr. Walter's communication to the Board, wherein he threatens to sue the city for the non-payment of certain bonds, was stricken out.

An election for Street Commissioners was held, which resulted as follows: Messrs. Johnson, and Ricks and Ellison, colored.

The election for the Finance Committee resulted in the selection of Messrs. Battle, White and Gorman.

A communication was read from R. F. Lawwell, Chairman Committee of Arrangements, inviting the Mayor and Board of Commissioners to participate in the Memorial services on Friday next.

A considerable discussion arose in regard to the salaries of Sextons, which was finally settled at $250 per annum.

The election of officers of the City Police force resulted as follows:

1st Assistant Chief of Police, H. B. Dunston, col.

2d Assistant Chief of Police, Alfred Mitchell, col.

Pending the election of officers the Board adjourned.

HORRIBLE.—A sacrilegious writer from Richmond, Va., thus unmercifully claps at a present fashion:

"By the way, it used to be considered proper to kneel in prayer at some of our churches, but the Paris fashions have interdicted that by rendering it impossible for a lady to kneel in the present religious garb, unless she gets out into the aisle."

We would join some of our lady friends in killing the wretch that perpetrated this joke.

SELECTED POETRY

OUR SOLDIERS—A CHILD'S TRIBUTE TO THE BRAVE.

From the Charlotte Observer. The poets of the South and of the North, the most eloquent orators of the new world, and the most beautiful writers of the old, have paid glowing tributes to the memory of the dead soldiers who shed their life's blood in the defense of the South. Men, women, boys and girls, all unite in paying tributes to their heroism, in prose and verse, as well as in strewing flowers upon their sacred resting places.

A small boy sends the following little poem for publication, which he modestly states in his note to the editor is his "first attempt," adding that he hopes to improve as he grows older and his mind becomes more mature. Whatever may be its literary merit, it possesses great interest simply as the efforts of a boy to express the sentiments of sorrow, love and admiration that thrills his heart as he contemplates the graves of those loved ones whose memory a whole people delight to honor.

OUR SOLDIERS' GRAVES.

Spread laurels on each honored grave,
Of the noble and the brave,
Those who gave their strength and life,
Guarding country, mother, wife,
Yes, on each grave the flowers strew,
Although perhaps not known to you;
Some Southern soldier slumbers there,
Their sacred dust is resting near.

How nobly did they fight to save,
Where'er the Southern banner waved;
Our country dear from tyrant foe,
Our country dear from untold woe.

Drop a tear on each grassy mound,
Lament and roses strew around;
They loved these flowers when they mingled
With us, now scatter them o'er their sacred dust.

Pause! drop a tear on each lone grave,
Of those who died our homes to save;
A tear for the soldier's honored dust,
Who died for our cause though lost still just.

Temple Providence—The Eronaut Balloons make an Ascent in a Paper Balloon.

The Eronaut W. H. Donaldson, whose reckless and foolhardy exploits have procured for him a world-wide notoriety, and whose chief pleasure in life consists apparently in courting a horrible death, has hit upon a new expedient for tempting Providence.

He has recently made a successful ascent at Reading, Pa., his home, in a paper balloon, the first ever undertaken in this country. The Reading Eagle gives an account of this dangerous feat, and publishes the following letter from Donaldson:

"Paper balloon ascensions are rare. Several French Eronauts attempted the experiment, but never risked a free ascension. A paper balloon was made lined with muslin, and allowed to ascend by rope, in 1782, in Paris. I have entertained the idea of constructing a paper balloon for a long time. I constructed the 'John D. Fisher' upon my own plans, gave it a coat of varnish, and I was so confident in its worthiness that I should have been willing to have made an ascension in a storm.

"After I left terra firma I viewed the thousands of people below with the utmost satisfaction. Of the many ascensions I have made in this city I never before had such a magnificent view of Reading and the surrounding country. I was not performing on the trapeze, but was simply contentedly sitting and looking upon the wondrous beauties of nature all spreading in below me."

After describing the nether landscape comprising Reading, Birdsboro, the green hills of Nebraska, Mount Penn, numberless villages, and the beautiful Schuylkill winding amidst them all, as they appeared in the deepening twilight, Donaldson proceeds:

"Slowly the earthly objects grew smaller and smaller and the earth became dark. It was twilight when I left Reading, and when I had reached a height of 2,000 feet the earth seemed dark—slowly I ascended to the line of the clouds, when suddenly the brilliant rays of the sun came up from behind the western horizon, and AGAIN IT WAS DAY.

It seemed as if I had been in a dream; and that the night had rolled away and it was morning once more. The side of the balloon was like a golden ball, and as I cast my eyes up the sight was beautiful. I looked up through the mouth of the balloon, and through the transparent paper I could see the meshes of the netting as plainly as from the outside, the same as if the paper was so much glass. Indeed the balloon seemed like illuminated glass with its varnished side turned toward the sun.

"Far away down toward the west, the very tips of the dark hills seemed tinged with gold, and the vapory distance hovering in the west was like a silvery lined cloud, between myself and the sun. But this beautiful scene soon passed away. The sun went down, to me, for the second time, and arose no more that night. Now all was gloomy and silent. In a few moments I could see just the first faint outlines of a few tiny stars, away high above the clouds. I was now alone in the clouds and presented, I think, one of the most

PERFECT AND BODING PICTURES OF SOLITUDE.

I ever heard of. It was my first night in the heavens, and I shall never forget the feelings of that hour.

"After having seen as much as possible, I pulled the valve rope and slowly commenced to descend. We came down gently as a feather and landed in a ravine, about three miles from the 'Sorel Horse' hotel, on the Morgantown road. I made one of the nearest landings I ever performed.

"About a dozen men in the neighborhood, residing in the farm houses above which I had so gently gilded, assisted me in bringing the netting and a portion of the balloon to the above hotel. The rest of the balloon I left behind, as ascensions can only be made once in them.

"I endeavored to procure a conveyance to return home, but could not; so, leaving my netting, &c., behind me, I journeyed homeward afoot. I arrived in the city at 11 o'clock, tired and hungry, though extremely well pleased with the success of my first paper balloon venture.

"I can now say that I have performed the first and only paper balloon ascension ever accomplished in the world."

NORTH CAROLINA, CABARRUS COUNTY, SUPERIOR COURT.

Jacob A. Fisher, et al, Plaintiffs.

Wm. Morrison and the "Concord Gold Mining Company" et al, Defendants.

It appears from the record of the Court that Jacob Morrison, Matilda Morrison and Robert Morrison are necessary parties to this action and that they reside beyond the limits of this State, and cannot be served with process, it is therefore ordered that publication be made for six weeks successively in the "Raleigh News," a paper published in the City of Raleigh, N. C., notifying the said defendants of the filing of the complaint in the above action, and that unless they appear and answer the term of our Superior Court for Cabarrus County, to be held at the Court House in Concord, on the first Monday in January next, and plead, answer or demur to the said complaint, the same will be heard ex parte as to them and judgment granted according to the complaint.

SIX OAKS PROLIFIC COTTON SEED.

I have for sale 200 bushels of genuine "SIX OAKS PROLIFIC" Cotton Seed. This cotton was originated and improved by J. V. Jones, of Georgia, and from whom I purchased the seed at a cost of SEVEN DOLLARS PER BUSHEL.

It is a distinct variety, in every respect from all others I have ever seen or tried. The limbs are numerous, long, short-jointed, with full developed buds, duplicated at the points, in such compact form as to cover in fine bunches, as many as 4 or 5 with the hand. The seed small and pointed, allowing free access of the sun to the buds. Seed small, few to the lobe, and when gathered almost entirely devoid of lint—staple strong, soft and of brilliant lustrous white—yielding from the seed more than any other, and will if properly handled always command in the market, three cents per pound more than our common seed.

This is strictly a HOME LIFE COMPANY. Its Officers and Directors are citizens of the State, of high character for business capacity, enterprise and probity. It does every SUBSTANTIAL BENEFIT hat Northern Companies do, with the great additional consideration that the capital kept within the State, and, therefore, helps to build up and foster Home Institutions.

Another important fact to be considered is, that the Wilmington Life has thus obtained a very much more liberal rate for the money invested at home, than any of the New York Companies receive for their investments, according to their own statements before the Commissioner of that State.

These unquestionable facts should commend this Company, above all others, to the people. Let persons born in this State, or who have been sent North since their birth, to build up and foster Home Institutions, and the Wilmington Life has thus obtained a very much more liberal rate for the money invested at home, than any of the New York Companies receive for their investments, according to their own statements before the Commissioner of that State.
